NORWAY AND VICINITY.

W. C. T. U.

The July meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held on Mrs. Edith Bartlett's spacious veranda Tuesday afternoon, July 4th. Mrs.
Addie Cotton and Mrs. Dora Tower were the hostesses and provided a most interesting program after which delicious refreshments of ice cream and fancy cakes were served.
The program, which came after the opening exercises and the business transactions, consisted of a paper, "Temperance Teaching in the Home," by Mrs.
Alice Northcutt; a reading on "Temperance Work in the Field" by Mrs. Cotton and a most interesting and helpful discussion by the members on "The Best Ways to Observe the Fourth of July." A social hour while enjoying the refreshments closed a most pleasant and profitable afternoon.

Mrs. W. W. Whitmarsh went to Lewiston, Tuesday.
Charles Crosby of Mechanic Falls, was in town, Tuesday.

Merton Libby attended the Democratic State convention at Bangor, Wednesday, as a delegate from Norway.

"The Courier's Daughter" at the Norway Opera House, Tuesday evening, was well presented to a fair sized audience.
O. W. Brown has his picture in the big head line of "the best sport paper in Boston," in the Boston Traveler as one of its writers.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Watrons and Mildred Y. nee of Newark, N. J., are visiting their brother, E. E. Young of 40 Main street.

F. W. Sanborn and F. H. Noyes went to Rumford Falls, Tuesday afternoon.
They went to Buckfield by team and returned the next day.

The ladies of the Congregational society give a veranda party at Mrs. H. J.
Bangs Friday evening July 17, from 7 to 10 o'clock. Ice cream and cake will on sale. The public are invited.

The Oxford County Agricultural society are making repairs preparatory for the September fair, improving their track, building new fences, making their horse sheds in better condition and other improvements.

Five men from the Norway go to make up the State Guard Rifle Team—Capt.
John W. Nash, 1st Lieut. M. P. Stiles, 2d Lieut. L. H. Daugherty, Sergt. M. P.
Marton, Sergt. A. L. Wyman. Last year Norway furnished seven men in the twelve who make up the team.

The shower Tuesday evening made everything deliciously fresh and bright, and cool. Coming as it did after the severe drought it was more than welcome.
A little dog expressed himself as everyone felt. When the first big drops fell on him he shut his eyes, lifted his head in thankfulness and just walked right into the rain, glad all over.

Harry Morrison of South Barwick, who is here with the new vacuum carpet sweeper, gave an exhibition at Odd Fellows' hall, Thursday afternoon. The cleaner or sweeper consists of an electric motor to which are attached two tubes, on the end of one the brush is attached and the dust, as the brush is worked, is carried back out through the other tube which can be placed out the window.
Fish chairs and other such articles are also easily cleaned by this method.

The Cummings brothers were informed Monday afternoon that fire was burning in their timber land near Paris Hill.
They immediately stopped work at the mill and took the workmen with others making 25 in all and started. When they arrived at South Barwick they were informed that the fire wasn't on their lot but they kept on. The fire was on the Andrews lot about 2 miles from South Paris on the Paris Hill road. It took a good sized crew of men to conquer it.
He and before this was accomplished about 20 acres was burned over.

On returning to the village late Tuesday afternoon in his runabout when near the Partridge Bros' store Dr. B. F.
Bradbury's machine displayed alarming symptoms and came to a sudden stop.
The doctor applied such simple remedies as he happened to have with him but all to no purpose. Dr. F. N. Barker happened along and a consultation was held and the machine was found to be suffering from automobile paralysis, and a buzz-wagon paralytic and they decided that it was a case for a specialist. Dr. Frank Beck, the noted automobile saw-bones, was sent for and made a record breaking run in his ambulance. Stimulants and restoratives were administered and a slight operation performed and the machine developed sufficient muscular energy to take the doctor home.

Dr. Harry Nevins' numerous friends and acquaintances were surprised to read in the Boston Globe last week an account which seemed to convey the idea that he had arranged a base ball game at Fitchburg and after the game went away suddenly with the proceeds.
But they were set right by an explanation published in the Sunday edition wherein it was explained that he was not manager of the team but another base ball enthusiast, Tommy Devine was captain and manager. Dr. Nevins played in the game and stood in with Devine on the expense and their opponents, the Newton team, claimed $80 of the proceeds, $20 was paid to them and the balance settled after his arrival home.
The doctor did not hurry from Fitchburg to avoid controversy. Dr. Nevins is a successful physician at Lawrence, Mass., and is well known here in his home town, where he is honored and respected.

"Where the Brook and River Meet."

That is the time—at the meeting of the ways—when so much is at stake for the girl of today, who will be the woman of tomorrow. Her every look must be weighed and her every act guided by the care of maternal experience, which balances all things in the scales of its own troublesome years. Then and then only was the exacting period be passed without temptation and without folly.
But the story of "Miss Petticoats" the successful book and equally successful play, is one which has to do with the girl who is brought more vividly to our attention every day, the motherless factory girl.

Her number is legion, in this as in every country, and it requires little imagination to picture the life of this heroine of story and stage, "Miss Petticoats".

Suffice it to say, it is a strong and intensely interesting portrayal of the characters we are constantly with, and as an up-to-date presentation of a distinctly human and timely subject, has met with the public's approval.

"Miss Petticoats" has made hosts of friends on its tour of this country, and the lovers of good fiction are promised a treasure on September 3, 1903, when this company with all its scenic accessories

The Union Picnic.
The union picnic of the four South Paris Sunday schools held at Gibson's grove on the shore of Lake Penesseewassee, Thursday, was a decided success. The weather was ideal for an affair of this kind. Three hayracks and a large four-seated covered carriage were provided and all were well filled with a jolly crowd of both old and young.
Many others went on the electric, so many that it required an extra trip of the steamer to convey them to their destination. Still a large number more went by private conveyance, on bicycles, motor boats, row boats, and later trips on the steamer. In all there were about 300 present.

Swings were put up, horse shoes were provided for that ever popular game of the same name and almost everyone had a hand at it some time during the day.
Lemonade and ice cream were provided.

The Fan Tans Entertained.
Friday afternoon a party of Fan Tans with their husbands went to Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Park's summer home, The Red Dragon, near Hebron.

As a part of the party were leaving Market square, J. H. Bean treated them with ice cream which was much appreciated.

On their arrival after a delightful drive through the woodland they were cordially welcomed by their host and hostess. Various forms of amusement were enjoyed, some wandering about the grounds admiring scenery, others viewing the many curios exhibited in the house, and many joined in the preparations for the supper to which each Fan Tan had contributed. The menu was:

Beans, Brown Bread, Hot Rolls, Pickles, Sugar'd Doughnuts, Lemon Pie, Raisin Pie, Blueberry Pie, Sponge Cake, Velvet Cake, Tea, Coffee, Cream, Watermelon, Plums.

The merry throng gathered about the tables and after singing, "Praise God, from Whom all blessings flow," the repast was enjoyed.

After supper the gentleman retired to the piazza where W. H. Porter presented a box of cigars. Later all wandered to the rock upon the knoll, after which we all gathered in the sitting-room and enjoyed a very pleasant hour made very interesting by R. N. Hall whose services we all appreciated. The following were the guests:

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Morton.

A Common Error

The Same Mistake Is Made by Many Maine People.

It's a common error. To plaster the aching back, To rub with liniments rheumatic joints, When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills. Peter McQuade, 49 Park St., Lewiston, Me., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney complaint for many years. It was worse from time to time, some of the attacks being really torture. I used plasters and various medicine but in spite of all my efforts for relief I got so bad that I could not walk for any distance, and was unable to get up or down stairs. Just after I had spent five dollars for a remedy that did me no good, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, got a box at a drug store and began using them. In a short time they had done me more good than all the other remedies I had previously used. I am well along in years, and could hardly expect a complete cure, but I am, indeed, thankful to have found a remedy that always brings relief. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand all the time and take a few doses occasionally, finding that they keep me in good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-McBurr Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

Life's Golden Ladder.

Climbing Life's Golden Ladder, In the early dawn of day; Eager to reach the summit, Watching each sunny ray.

As it falls on hills and valleys Where childhood's feet oft stray, Echoing back the soft lay, Of the forest birds' sweet lay, Reasoning o'er the mountains, Faced with rugged heights, Climbing the woodland towers Where nature gives them birth.

Fit with a longing quest, To climb to the loftiest height, With never a thought of failure— That the unseen life

But as our childhood passes, And we drift on with the years— Our youthful hopes are vain— And leave but a harvest of tears.

But hope, with her silver lining, Opens again to our sight, And bids us go on rejoicing, For out of the clouds comes light.

So we rise and strive westward With courage, our hearts are brave, And we never feel not unwarmed, And we never feel not unwarmed.

Then weary of all life's battles, We turn from the dizzy height, Kidney Pills, got a box at a drug store and began using them. In a short time they had done me more good than all the other remedies I had previously used. I am well along in years, and could hardly expect a complete cure, but I am, indeed, thankful to have found a remedy that always brings relief. A Reading for Unmarried Men.

To all young men I would say—Don't marry a flirt, a dashing, dizzy devotee to coquetry, "A peacock with the claws of an eagle and the self assurance of a magpie." Miss Flirt is not always Miss Virtue. There is nothing sacred or holy about love or marriage to her. She goes forth to conquer, heart light and head lighter. She delights in counting her conquests and in dreaming of others to fall under her spell. She is always on dress parade, always adorning herself, always casting sly glances to wards all young men, and sometimes, made bold by the slightest attention on their part, enters into the most disgusting flirtations. She is not a charming flower with the bloom and fragrance still upon it. But a wilted daisy to be admired for a moment and then trampled in the dust forever.

Don't marry a society girl. I mean the girl whose one thought, whose heart, and entire time are given to dress, style, pompadour, powder, mirrors, cards, dances, and a continual round of social gaieties. Such a girl is no more fit to be the wife of your heart, the mother of your children, the queen of your home than a box confectioner. Society is railing to-day a race of girls who know no art of use or value. They know not how to sew, broil a steak, play a sweet melody, smooth the pillow of pain, repeat a psalm, or offer a prayer—a race of girls whose heads and hearts are empty of anything solid or helpful. Imagine such a girl fifteen years hence, having her own boys and girls gathered about her knee begging to know what to do, how to entertain themselves, what to read.

I have no more to say of this society craze that absorbs every thought and minute of its devotees and submerges head, heart and home in the whirling vortex of fashion's frenzy, only a profound pity for the narrow, pinched up, living people living, and for the sorrows with which they are so often afflicted.

Don't marry the girl who is lazy and who spends the early morning hours in bed, and drags through the day in a listless, heartless manner. You may know but little of her home life, yet you can tell her at a glance. She is neither neat nor tidy in her personal appearance. Her every aspect indicates that "tired feeling." Her hair, a woman's glory, is brushed up carelessly; her gown is put on in a haphazard manner; her hat awry, and with dowdy appearance and listless gait, she roves the streets, the very picture and personification of shiftlessness. Unless you wish to live on cold meals, sleep in ill-made beds, sit in rooms that are cheerless, I warn you to beware of the lazy girl.

Don't marry the girl who is ashamed of her old-fashioned parents and is always apologizing for their bad English, slips in etiquette and their foggy notions, and informs you on the side that they are "away behind the times." The girl, who, with an air of self-conscious superiority, is forever telling her dear old folks that she is a Christian, since she was a girl; that people are broader and more liberal in their views and ideas, and that girls are more independent.

Don't marry the girl who scoffs at religion and laments at being changed—one who makes light jests about the church and who points the finger of derision at her young friends kneeling in prayer; who places the trashy novel above the Bible; who laughs at mother's tears and father's anxieties. I do not say, don't marry a girl unless she is a Christian, but I do say shun the chronic scorner who laughs and sneers at Christian faith and service.

Don't marry the girl who attracts attention in public by "loud" dress and louder talk; who is coarse in jest and given to slang—the girl who is indiscreet and says that she doesn't care if people do talk about her as long as she has a good time and is innocent of any great wrong. That girl puts too little value upon character and life.

Don't marry the girl who refuses to work because she thinks it will lower her in the estimation of her set; who thinks that it is beneath her to help support her family if they are in need, and who is ashamed to let her friends know that her people have to work.

Don't marry the selfish girl whose ambition never soared above self, the girl who cannot bear to hear another well spoken of and who becomes jealous of another who is praised.

Marry a woman—"the noblest work of God," "the improved edition of man," "the crown of creation." A woman will be a joy to your life, a glory to your home, a mother to your children, an honor to your name. It takes a woman to be a mother. Marry a woman. You have no excuse for marrying anything but a woman. The world is full and abundant with them. In them, while here and there you may find a butterfly, a society doll, a giggling empress, a gossiping gadabout, a termagant; yet, the world is full of whole-hearted, noble, pure, true girls, any one of whom, through love, would grace your home and fill your life with heart answering to heart.—[Vick's.]

The second coupon is detached by the baggage master in Portland to show the safe arrival of the cans. At the general baggage master. The third simply serves to return the can to its starting place.

The engagement is announced of Alice May Hamlin, daughter of W. K. Hamlin of South Waterford to Alonzo Collamore of Dorchester, Mass.

Waste Land and Forest Growth.

The writer of a popular tree book once stated that the white pine of our northeastern states was destined to disappear except for ornamental purposes. There are many reasons to believe that that time will never come, yet the nature and habits of the tree and the short-sightedness of the people make the statement more than a mere suspicion.

Not a great many years ago within the white pine region, there were magnificent stands of old growth pine. Every old inhabitant today will tell you how they stood on his father's farm when he was a boy, their clear, straight trunks and gnarled flat tops high above everything else. Many an old house back in the country has floor boards and cupboard doors that are more than three feet wide which were made from such trees.

These old monarchs of the northern forests are gone now, except for isolated trees or clumps scattered widely over the region. A woodlot owner recently cut down several and has taken the hills in order to point out three magnificent pines which have been standing probably for more than 250 years. One could never mistake them from others of a later generation.

Before the advent of the portable sawmill, it was unprofitable to cut and haul logs any great distance to market.

The trees were felled, rolled together and burned when new lands were cleared.
"Log rolling" days are still prevalent in New England's oldest inhabitants. Those were the days of the large farms with great herds of cattle and many oxen. Sheep roamed the hills in far greater numbers than they ever do today. Immense areas were required for pasturage, and extensive fields supplied the hay and grain for the winter feed. Ox pastures are not known today, yet they were common in the days gone by.

Today, farming has moved westward, and large farms in the hills have been reduced or abandoned entirely. It is true, of course, that men have learned to cultivate small areas often as profitably as their fathers did larger tracts of land.
Every industrious farmer went over his pastures each year and removed every chance pine that had seeded from some adjacent tree. Now every wise farmer leaves the young pines to grow.
It may not be very strange to know then that today there are more acres actually growing trees than there were 50 or 60 years ago. There is not more timber, of course, for much of the valuable forests have been removed within the last fifty years. Such land is now covered with a poor quality of hardwoods. The valuable forests today are the old fields and pastures which have grown up to pine.

Everyone knows that broadleaf trees, such as birch, maple and oak, never take the place of pine when it is cut.
The pines do not sprout as a rule, and when a pine forest has been cut over without leaving any trees for seed, there is no chance for young pines to again occupy the place of their fathers.

Maple, with their light seeds, usually take possession of the cut-over lands.

This type becomes known as sprout growth and is of little value to mankind.
White pine, deprived of its light to the cut-over lands, is, however, the predominating tree of the abandoned fields.
The owners no longer cut down the young pines but encourage their growth.

In a suitable soil, with sufficient light and with occasional manure to supply the seeds, the abandoned fields alone are providing for our future commercial timber.

A southern New Hampshire lumberman recently stated that if he had left a few sturdy pines for seed trees on the woodlots he had lumbered during the last thirty years, the present value of the young growth would be worth more than all the timber he has cut during his lifetime. There are thousands of acres of land, once growing pine, which are now producing nothing better than gray birch and maple.

Often fires have been allowed to burn over the ground until the only growth remaining is scrubby and worthless.
But fires are not the menace they used to be. Farmers are learning the value of young pine growth and the starting of fires to clear land is not common. Fires set along railroads and by careless boys are now the most serious ones.

With increased safety to forest growth planting becomes more and more a desirable investment. Every acre of land should be producing something of value to its owners in the general opinion of the expert forester in this era of progress. The planting of white pine is often the only means of getting an income from some lands. All the vacant land and pastures cannot seed themselves and the cost of planting them will soon be paid for by the increased value of the land.

But many people say, "It will never do me any good. I will never live long enough to realize anything from my labor and expense." Experience of hundreds has shown that this is a grave mistake. One does not have to wait till their planted lands have grown mer-chantable timber. Everywhere people are seeking to invest their money in young timber and they are willing to pay good prices for it.

Many farmers are planting all their vacant and worthless land with pine and chestnut and are buying similar land of other people for the same purpose.
Where the expense of the operation is ten or twelve dollars per acre, in a few years the land will be worth forty or fifty dollars. Such investments easily bring 5 to 7 per cent interest to the owner on his money invested in the land.
The cost of growing trees on the rough New England hillsides can with a little care be made to accumulate a cord of wood per acre annually. Such is the case, however, and it is needless to say that one does not have to invest his earnings in copper or other doubtful stock from which he may never see any returns.

There are many ways by which an owner may seed up his waste land with pine. Some people have met with fair success by gathering the cones early in the fall before they open, drying them out, and scattering the seeds during the winter or early spring. It is best still to go in the spring, a few together, in spots previously cleared of grass or turf and then press them into the soil with the foot.

Successful planting of wild seedlings is often done by transplanting little trees growing in thick bunches or in the shade when they are more mature.

The most successful planting is done with trees—two or three years old—bought from nursery men and set out five or six feet apart each way. This should be done in the early spring before the growth starts. Chestnuts should be kept in moist sand over winter and planted in the spring. They grow rapidly.

The advance in prices of lumber and the extensive box and cooperage mills throughout the northeast have made sad inroads on our timberlands. Not only is the old growth timber largely gone, but lumbermen even find a profit in trees that are scarcely six inches in diameter.
The time is past when trees can be allowed to grow to immense size. It is figured that pine yields the greatest returns for the money invested between the ages of 40 and 60 years. Chestnut requires even less time.

Those who have studied the matter say that the time is at hand when the forests are to be considered as crops to be planted, thinned and harvested like other crops. When this practice becomes more universal and people learn more clearly the value of growing timber, there will not be thousands of acres of unproductive land in every state, a constant eyesore to the people, and yielding no returns to the owners.

Washington furnishes free of charge pamphlets and other information on the methods of planting desirable species, and where the seeds and young plants may be obtained, together with range of

DISTEMPER IN DOGS.

How to Detect and Cure This Dreaded Malady.

Distemper, one of the most dreaded among dog illnesses, is an affection which is microbian in its nature and is susceptible of affecting the greater part of the organs. It is therefore extremely variable in its manifestations, says the New York Herald.

Should it take the form of gastro-intestinal catarrh it then offers as symptoms vomiting and diarrhea, with a general feverish state, characterized by a profound depression, a wretched appearance of the face, which the state of the eyes, filled with a thick mucous pus, only tends to make worse.

In this case it must be given in small fragments to stop the vomiting, and the diarrhea must be combated by a potion with a basis of salicylate of bismuth and sirup of ratanhia. It is well also to feed the sick dog exclusively with boiled milk to which has been added some vichy water.

If the suffering animal coughs and ejects from the nostrils a thick liquid which forms crusts when dry, these signs prove that it is the respiratory tract which is attacked. It is well then to give fumigations with mallow and elder flowers and eucalyptus leaves and a vomitive of sirup of ipecacuanha. If in spite of this treatment the cough does not give way, recourse must be had to calming potions of sirup of poppies or belladonna and to bromide of potassium.

Should the animal show labial puffing—that is to say, should during the expiration his cheeks and his lips swell—the lungs are then affected by the inflammation. It is a case of pneumonia. Mustard plasters must be placed under the chest and on each side of the thorax, and a portion of tincture of digitalis must be given. The food must consist of substances easy of digestion—milk, meat broth, cream, yolks of eggs, meat juice. Should the general condition call for it, it will be well to give hot grogs made with old cognac or rum.

When the nervous system is affected the manifestations are most serious. They are characterized by "cerebral or medullary meningitis," which frequently ends in paralysis. The spinal column and the back of the neck must be rubbed with an ointment containing antimony, and an energetic revulsion in the intestine must be brought about by a strong purge. In the event of serious convulsions and of intense pains characterized by whining and howling morphine may be administered.

The form of the disease least to be feared is that which shows itself on those parts of the skin which are hairless by an eruption similar to human smallpox. This eruption must be allowed to follow its course, and should the itching become too irritating a lukewarm very weak solution of permanganate of potash should be used. The eruption must be followed by powdering with a mixture of talc, starch and potato starch.

Should the animal recover it must be put on a severe diet during its convalescence and allowed to eat only gradually. A specialist recommends a portion a teaspoonful of which is to be given during the acute period of the disease. The formula is as follows:

Salicylate of bismuth..... 5 Grams.
Extract of belladonna..... 5 Sirup of ratanhia..... 50 Paregoric elixir..... 2 Water..... 50
Then during convalescence he recommends the following mixture to be given in doses of from two to four tablespoonfuls daily:

Dry peptones..... 10 grams Tincture of nux vomica..... 2 drops Kola wine..... 200 grams How to Make Slips For Waists.
Slips to keep fancy and dressy waists free from dust when hanging in the closet may be made of thin cambric or some other cheap material. They are made of two oblong pieces of material sewed together in exactly the same manner as a pillowslip is made. It does not need to be as large as a pillowslip, but it must be plenty large enough, so that it does not crease the waist. On one side of the opening at the top sew two buttons, each one six or eight inches from the ends. On the opposite side in corresponding places work buttonholes. Place the waist over a hanger and draw the slip up to the level of the bust, at the top, and you will have a fine protector for your waist. Slips for skirts may be made in the same manner, making them lots longer, of course.

How to Cut Glass.
Any hard steel tool will cut glass with great facility when freely wet with camphor dissolved in turpentine. A drill may be used or even the hand alone. A hole bored may be easily enlarged by a round file. The ragged edges of glass vessels may also be easily smoothed thus with a flat file. Window glass may be readily sawed with a watch spring saw by aid of this solution.

How to Replace Kettle Knobs.
Replace the knobs of cooking utensils in this way: Put a screw through from the inside, letting it come up close and tight, threading a cork, according to the size of the screw, on the outside. The screw will not loosen, and the cork will not get hot; therefore they are better than the original wooden knobs.

How to Keep Your Pocketbook.
To prevent losing your pocketbook while shopping tie a ribbon or cord to handle of purse and fasten inside of jacket sleeve with a safety pin. Your purse cannot then be slipped off your arm without your knowledge nor left on the counter, as is the case in many instances.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

Mrs. Liana Willard Hapgood, wife of Col. Andrew S. Hapgood, whose prolonged illness has been a subject of deep solicitude to a wide circle of friends and neighbors, passed away on Monday, July 13th. Her disease was general tuberculosis. Her age was 38 years 3 months, 23 days.
Mrs. Hapgood was the daughter of Horace M. and Ellen (Wilber) Willard of Waterford. She possessed a cultivated mind and had been before her marriage a teacher in the public schools of Newry and Upton for several years. Although before her late sickness, she was always interested in the business of her household, yet the care and education of her two young children 8 and 6 years of age, the demands of her religious duties and church attendance were never omitted for any slight cause. In society, as hostess or guest, she was beloved by her associates, and her loss will be sincerely mourned.

The funeral services were at the late residence, and were attended by Mr. Guy Von Aldrich, who is supplying the two congregations this summer at the South villages. The interment is at Newry.

It was a very pleasing affair last Thursday evening at the home of E. P. Kimball when Lillian Kimball and Marion Packard celebrated their 15th birthdays, there being but four days difference in their ages. There were about 30 present. The occasion was made more enjoyable because of the fine weather and bright moonlight evening. The entertainment consisted mainly such games as the guess table, charades, questions and answers, etc., with music. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

$25.00 FOR A LETTER

Can You Write One?

Eight Prizes To Be Awarded in a Letter Writing Contest Open to Everyone in Maine.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been used in this state for a generation. Hundreds of remarkable cures have been reported during that time and there is scarcely a family in which the remedy has not been tried with beneficial results. This furnishes the material for the letters to be written in the contest. There is no demand upon the imagination, every narrative must deal with facts.

The Prizes.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Schenectady, N. Y., will award a prize of $25.00 for the best letter received on or before July 25, 1908, from the state of Maine, on the subject, "Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." A prize of $10.00 will be awarded for a second best letter received, a prize of $5.00 for the third best and five prizes of one dollar each for the next best five letters.

The Conditions.

The cure or benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills described in the letter may be in the writer's own case or one that has come under his or her personal observation.

More than one cure may be described in the letter, so long as every statement made is literally true.

The letter should be no longer than necessary to relate the benefit obtained from the remedy in the case described.

Each letter must be signed by the writer with his or her name and full address and the letter must give the correct name and address of the person whose cure is described. THESE WILL BE STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. Letters containing addresses that cannot be verified will not be considered in awarding the prizes.

The writer of each letter must state the name and date of the paper in which he or she saw the announcement of this competition.

Fine writing will not win the prize unless you have a good case to describe. The strength of the recommendation and not the style of the letter will be the basis of award.

The contest will close July 25, 1908. Do not delay, but if you know a case write your letter NOW. Observe the above conditions carefully or your letter may be thrown out.

Address all letters as follows:

Not According to Rule.

Brown Tail Millers Give Itch, and Females Are Numerous.
The early cheering theory that that most exasperating affliction, the brown tail moth, was not to be feared from the brown tails, once the caterpillar stage ended and the moth period began, has been thoroughly fractured by the flight of the white winged myriads. The moths may not cause such violent cases as the caterpillars, but they can set up an irritation of the human skin that is bad enough for all practical purposes.
A practical moral to draw is that it doesn't pay to stand too near corners where swarms of the moths surround the are lights.
Last year doubts began to be expressed of the harmlessness of the moths, and this season's experiences have left no doubt on the subject.
And another happy assurance, which came from a Massachusetts moth expert, doesn't sound quite so assuring as it did. This was to the effect that only about 6 per cent. of the millers seen in the flights were females and that only a small percentage of these would ever lay their eggs. One moth hunter has found fifty one-half inch of the millers that had congregated to be females, full of eggs.
All of which is a reminder that the millers are mighty unwelcome guests, and that anything that is effective against them, garden hose, brushes, traps or electric lights, bonfires, ought to be put to immediate use. Abovate very female miller can be reckoned upon for 200 eggs.
Moth traps have been used very effectively. One is made in this way:—It is simply a netting covered with an adhesive substance and hung under the street light. The moths strike the glass globe in their eagerness to get at the light and the force of the contact causes them to fall into the netting. There they stick like a fly in a sea of tanglefoot.

Much of the annoyance dependent on washing the hair might be dispensed with if the owner would refrain from combing it until dry. It is the persistent manipulation while wet which takes all the electricity out of it, and renders it stringy and lifeless when dry. This was demonstrated to be a fact when a friend and myself took a shampoo at the same time; I combed mine out while wet, as usual, but she refrained, and when dry her hair was soft, fluffy and traceable, while mine was almost unmanageable.
Every lover of wild flowers and ferns knows that they have a charm that no garden or home plant can matter how beautiful can have. The interest they awaken is something akin to the wild freedom and fitness of the wood's animals over the domesticated ones; the fish of our waters over the gold fishes. They seem born to the places they occupy not made for them.

Eternal vigilance is the price of protection against bad laws and misrule as well as the price of liberty. Since laws are made, construed and enforced by public officials, it is necessary that great care should be exercised in the selection of them in order that they, when selected, shall guard the interests of the whole people.

Somebody up in Vermont has got so long a fish that even a picture of it has to come in sections through the mail. We've received four sections and the name of the catfish and sender thereof has not yet appeared. The hand writing on the card is very like C. D. Waters', whom we congratulate for landing so large a fish.

The ear ring seems to be threatening a return to popularity. Of course the prettiest are of diamond or pearl or a combination of the two. She who would emphasize the width of face may accomplish it by the wearing of the elaborate ear ring. She who would lengthen it may attain her object by wearing ear-rings of considerable droop.

P. H. Howard while alighting from a car at Rumford Falls slipped and fell, striking on his arm and causing a compound fracture. He returned to Portland and was taken to the hospital for treatment. He was discharged from the hospital but a short time ago when recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

Political post cards will be a new factor in a Presidential campaign. Won't they boom?

Security for Depositors

For the contracts, debts and engagements of a National Bank the stockholders are individually responsible to the extent of their holdings of stock at its par value in addition to the amount invested in the stock. In other words, the National Banking Laws make every stockholder of—

NORWAY NATIONAL BANK OF NORWAY, MAINE, liable to depositors for twice the amount of stock owned.

That is only one way that careful and exacting Government supervision adds to the strength of this institution. The books of the bank are examined under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency at least five times a year and twice a year in addition by a Committee of the Directors.
For 36 years this bank has grown with the growth of its territory, and thus has acquired capital, surplus and undivided profits to the amount of more than $92,000.

In the 36 years of this bank's history no depositor has ever lost a dollar, and the aggregate of deposits is now over $234,000.

To Make the Old Potato good Eating.

The housekeeper and all the family these days who cannot afford to buy new potatoes, and generally have a few old ones that they want to save find the old ones not very good eating, and sometimes they do not add much to otherwise good dinners. If the housekeeper would peel the old potatoes and let them set in ice water a few hours if she has prepared them in season, if not a shorter length of time, and then put them in boiling water to cook, she will find them better than unripe new potatoes. French fried old potatoes are at night if they are allowed to remain in ice water before being cooked, and baked potatoes ditto. To make the crisp potato chips peel and slice the potatoes and put in plenty of hot fat and cook.

LOVELL CENTER.

Big Addition to Grange Hall Fund. The celebration given by Suncook Grange at Lovell, Center, Lovell, July 4, was a grand success in every way. The speakers were ably presented by Bro. Douglas Volk in a pleasing way that he knows so well. He welcomed the people in behalf of Suncook Grange and with appropriate remarks presented each speaker.

The readings by Judge Bashard were thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Stanford gave a fine historical address, and the address given by Past State Master Obadiah Gardner was listened to with great interest. Robinson's orchestra of Bridge-ton gave fine music, a cornet solo by Gladys Robinson being especially good. Master Myron Kimball, the 6 year old son of G. A. Kimball, sang "America."

He gives promise of great musical ability. The vaudeville entertainment was patronized liberally and it was really a fine show. Bro. Douglas Volk gave a painting which was sold by tickets for the benefit of the grange.

The grangers won the tug of war contest against the Redmen, the contest being decided by Bro. Gardner. Ice cream, candy and lemonade were on sale, a dinner and supper served and dancing enjoyed afternoon and evening.

Each credit, Prime Mr. Volk's people for their help and letting the grange have the use of their beautiful grounds. Mr. Volk's painting was won by a young lady boarding at J. E. Farnham's.
